

Cover picture by Giulia Piras

WOMEN'S POLITICAL PARTICIPATION

GENDER STUDIES

Chiara Cretella (edited by)

Generi in formazione.

L'impatto della didattica universitaria sulla cittadinanza di genere

The empiric approach of the book Gender in education. The impact of the university education on gendered citizenship leads us to understand why we need an inclusive gaze in research and teaching.

Italy, like other countries, has a low female presence in politics especially in the top positions: the World Economic Forum analyses that estimate the Global Gender Gap, tell us that in 2021, in 156 countries analyzed, women make up only 26% of all parliaments and occupy only 23% of ministerial positions. The set of contributions proposed here tries to think about the factors that keep women away from politics and participation, focusing on the impact of gender issues addressed in university-level courses.

Is there a positive correlation between the proposal of courses and master's degrees that apply a gender approach and the degree of political participation and active citizenship of the students who follow them? With what gender stereotypes and prejudices do the younger generations arrive at the end of the school cycle? Do they cultivate political subjectivity as a possibility of change? Can academic teaching help to become aware of the right to gender citizenship?

With contributions of: Dario Tuorto, Serena Stefani, Chiara Cretella, Elena Luppi, Rosy Nardone, Federica Zanetti, Manuela Ghizzoni, Cinzia Venturoli, Cinzia Albanesi, Maric* Lorusso, Andrea Ciani.

The volume is enhanced with interviews to women who involve gender topics in their work, whether in politics or movements: Emma Bonino, Annalisa Rabitti, Pamela Fussi, Federica Mazzoni, Natalia Maramotti e Anna Maria Crispino.

The editor, Chiara Cretella

She works at the Department of Education at the University of Bologna and is a part of the CSGE - Center for Gender Studies and Education of the same department. She has collaborated as a journalist and activist on women's rights with various magazines and associations.

Title: Gender in Education

Editor: Chiara Cretella

Pages: 256 - Price 19,00 euro

Format: 16,5 x 24

Isbn: 9788898947706

Topics: women's political participation, gender education, citizenship, politics, university

